

From the community: Ryerson Reads Enters its 14th Season!

Posted by Laura Fruhauff, Community Contributor

By Community Contributor Laura Fruhauff

FEBRUARY 2, 2017, 1:52 PM

The 2016-2017 season of Ryerson Reads wraps up on March 8th with Half-Earth by Edward O. Wilson taking the stage for an in-depth discussion led by Professor Benjamin Goluboff. Then the excitement of planning for Ryerson Reads' 14th season begins and a whole new set of books that speak to any combination of art, nature, or wellbeing will join the line-up!

For all 14 seasons, Professor of English and expert in American literature at Lake Forest College, Dr. Benjamin Goluboff, has led captivating discussions on environmental literature at Brushwood Center's Ryerson Reads. Dozens of books have been covered and the topics span multi-faceted aspects and eras of the environmental literature movement. Ryerson Reads is an opportunity to gather with other book and nature fans to learn through scholarly discussion and debate while enjoying the historic and natural setting that Brushwood Center at Ryerson Woods provides. Ryerson Reads is designed to fit around busy schedules! Join the conversation!

Ryerson Reads meets 4 times/season on Wednesdays from 7:30-9pm.

To register call 847.968.3308 or visit

<http://www.brushwoodcenter.org/Programs/Discovery/RyersonReads.html>

Next Meeting:

3/8/17: Half-Earth by Edward O. Wilson

This item was posted by a community contributor. To read more about community contributors, click here.

Copyright © 2017, Chicago Tribune